

College of Charleston

Sottile Theatre

Corner of George and King Street
Downtown Charleston

The beautiful and historic Sottile Theatre at the College of Charleston serves as a performing arts venue for the college and the community, hosting events and staged performances of all kinds. Since its opening in 1927, the Sottile Theatre (formerly known as the Gloria Theater) has been a true asset to both the College of Charleston and the entire Charleston community. It remains a vital resource for the area's continued cultural expansion.

Anja Kelly,
Theatre Manager
Kasey Beard,
Technical Director